NUMBER 39

Navigating the School Year: Don'ts

- Don't adopt the mentality that since you send your children to school, the responsibility for their education is no longer yours. God holds parents accountable for the education of their children.
- Don't allow your children to become distant from you. Never stop communicating (Deuteronomy 6:4-7).
- Don't be too busy to spend daily time with each of your children. Make outings and activities with them a priority.
- Don't ever, ever skip a scheduled worship service for a school or sports activity.
- Don't ever let a day go by in which they don't hear you pray for their souls.
- Don't leave your children at after-hours school day care as a babysitting service. The bare minimum number of hours is enough and often too much.
- Don't encourage your children to give in to peer pressure. Get rid of the mentality that you don't want them to think being a Christian is restrictive. Being a Christian is living sacrificially and is not always fun, but sacrifices strengthen convictions that will serve them well through a lifetime toward heaven.
- Don't assume you will find out if your children are questioning the existence of God or the doctrines of the Scriptures. Your job is to communicate, communicate, communicate!
- Don't leave them in a situation in which their faith is being eroded. There are options. This risk is eternal. You can never regain this important time in their lives. -Cindy Colley, Think Magazine, September '07

"Bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." -Ephesians 6:4
